Your friend since childhood has started spending less time with you and has been hanging out with different friend groups. You’re not sure if they still value you as a friend.

Your friend is constantly texting you and gets offended when you are not available to hang out. You think it’s starting to deteriorate your friendship.

Somebody secretly played a mean prank on your friend. Your friend is convinced that you’re responsible.

How can you resolve the conflict or misunderstanding?